5 Crypto Whales are Buying up PEPE, LINK, and More

Original:

<https://www.btcc.com/en-US/academy/research-analysis/5-crypto-whales-are-buying-up-pepe-link-and-more>

As significant transactions of PEPE, LINK, UNI, MKR, and ENS spike on Binance, crypto whales indicate an optimistic mood.

Key Takeaways:

- With big transactions on Binance, a number of cryptocurrency whales have dramatically expanded their holdings in PEPE, LINK, UNI, MKR, and ENS.
- A wallet address called “0x1A2E” sent 322.48 billion PEPE units, or almost $2.78 million.
- Whales’ withdrawals have the potential to affect market liquidity and raise prices if there is continued high demand for these cryptocurrency.

Many cryptocurrency “whales” have bolstered their holdings by buying up PEPE, LINK, UNI, MKR, and ENS in large quantities. Recent agreements between large companies conducted on the Binance platform made this feature very apparent. Since these movements often herald big price adjustments and may reflect the general market mood, market participants and analysts pay great attention to them.

An anonymous investor whose sole known wallet address is “0x1A2E” was involved in a major transaction. This individual transferred an astounding 322.48 billion PEPE tokens from Binance, which is equivalent to almost $2.78 million. This move indicates a positive attitude towards PEPE and could indicate a possible increase in its value in the future. There may be indications of insider confidence in the asset’s performance based on the timing and scale of this transaction.

Plus, there was another major player who went by the handle “aavebank.eth” who was participating. It only took one investor six hours to withdraw substantial funds from Binance. The assets were valued at 3,75 million UNI ($3.5 million), 2,62 million LINK ($2.62 million), 171 million KR ($500,000), and 31,139 ENS ($483,000). Withdrawal from a diversified portfolio indicates a deliberate investment in several cryptocurrency assets.

Crypto Value Appreciation: A Bet by Market Whales

Whales’ massive cryptocurrency withdrawals could lead to a liquidity crunch and price instability. By decreasing the amount of supply on exchanges, these investors can raise prices in the event that demand stays the same or increases. In fact, these large holders typically interpret whale behaviour as signs for future worth.

These whales are betting on good returns from their assets, as they have pulled a number of them out of the markets. It seems like they’re aiming for the long haul instead of quick cash. The fact that they are taking money out shows that they believe these cryptocurrencies will keep appreciating in value.

PEPE Trading Activity Explodes, Bullish Technical Indicators

Recent data from Binance shows a spike in PEPE price action. It looked like there was a bullish crossover in the MACD indicator. The increasing purchasing momentum makes this signal quite powerful. Along with the apparent PEPE market price surge, this pattern has been further confirmed by the recent crossing of the signal line by the MACD line below.

With an RSI of 64.86, PEPE is clearly under intense buying pressure. Plus, it's below the overbought level of 70, so there's potential for further price increases before the market gets too hot.
