What is AITX? Fundamentals Analysis

Artificial Intelligence Technology Solutions (AITX) was founded on March 25, 2010, by John B. Crawford. Headquartered in Ferndale, Michigan, it is a business-facing company that targets firms in the manufacturing sector.

Today, the company engages in providing artificial intelligence (AI) solutions. One of its main products is the security robots such as ROAMEO. Its focus is on AI-driven technologies capable of being paired with multi-use hardware and can easily integrate with custom software and cloud services. In addition, they are also involved in the automation and integration of security, concierge, and operational tasks.

The AITX company boasts several subsidiaries, including Robotic Assistance Devices (RAD), Robotic Assistance Devices Group, Robotic Assistance Devices Mobile, On the Move Experience, and OMV Transports. These companies manufacture products that are used to maintain stationary workflow automation solutions.

The last few months have seen AITX make significant market moves that will position it as an AI-hardware solutions provider in the markets. Among these moves is the announcement that its subsidiary, Robotic Assistance Devices Inc (RAD), had signed Prudential Alarm as a new authorized dealer. The company indicated that it had received an order for multiple security robots through this collaboration. This will see the company increase its sales in the coming years.

The company also planned to bring the RAD light my way, an integrated facility, and campus safety application to the market. These moves will see the company continue to gain traction and increase sales.

As a penny stock, AITX does not have the heavyweight investors that hold other companies like Blackrock and Vanguard. According to Yahoo Finance, the biggest institutional shareholders in the company are Baxter Brothers, MAI Capital Management, and Williams Jones Wealth Management. It is also estimated that Steven Reinharz, the company's CEO, has a major stake in the company.

Still, the main concern for the AITX stock price is the significantly high debt and huge cash burn. It has more than $35 million in total liabilities and little cash. With these realities, the company may likely have a challenge selling more stock.

- AITX CEO Steve Reinharz Expands Communications Reach Efforts in February.

On February 1, 2023, AITX announced that CEO Steve Reinharz will conduct 2 highly visible media outreach campaigns.

On February 5, Reinharz conducted another session of his 'Ask Me Anything' series. These hour-long live sessions, also presented on YouTube Live are designed to connect Reinharz with the growing AITX community. Questions are posed on the Company's Discord channel and via YouTube. Reinharz does not screen the questions and his responses are often insightful.

Reinharz added, "Lately I've been stepping up the communications with the AITX community and new followers. The pace and volume of activity throughout the Company drive me to connect as much as possible, and we're still accelerating the outreach. There's much more coming."

- AITX Price Changes for Some Security Robots

On January 31st AITX announced price changes across four solutions offerings effective the start of the Company's next fiscal year, March 1, 2023. Price increases range from 18% to 29% for three solutions. Furthermore, one solution will have a price decrease of 17%.

AITX noted that in most cases the final pricing is determined by its network of over 50 dealers, and it is ultimately the responsibility of these dealers to apply and pass on any price increases to customers. The primary reason for these increases is to ensure value pricing in the market.

These price increases help AITX achieve previously stated gross revenue goals for FY24 in addition to adding flexibility to manage inflationary pressures without grossly deviating from target return-on-capital and gross profit margins.

- AITX Supports New Agreement Between ASIS International and Circadian Risk

On January 25th AITX announced its support for the agreement made between ASIS International and Circadian Risk, Inc. to deliver the security organization's Physical Asset Protection (PAP) Standard as a SaaS-based assessment within Circadian Risk's Enhanced Solutions™ Risk Suite.

Previously AITX announced an investment in Circadian Risk, paving the way for possible collaborations and integrations with AITX solutions. Circadian Risk develops software that gives security professionals the power to proactively reduce potential risks to individuals and assets. Their vulnerability assessment tools provide a complete detailed analysis, as well as corrective actions for every issue that may arise.

ASIS International is the world's largest membership organization for security management professionals. With hundreds of chapters across the globe, ASIS International is recognized as the premier source for learning, networking, standards, and research.

- AITX Announces 'Bailey's 5', an Expansion of the 'Bailey's Gift' Campaign

On January 24th AITX announced an extension to its 'Bailey's Gift' campaign, 'Bailey's 5'.

The campaign will see AITX donate a minimum of five ROSS AI-based security solutions to qualified K-12 schools in the United States. View the video announcement here <https://tinyurl.com/2p96utzx>.

ROSS (RAD Operations System Software) is the AITX software solution enabling millions of legacy IP security cameras previously deployed to be able to connect with the RAD ecosystem (RADSoC). RAD's firearm detection identifies the presence of side arms and long gun firearms. Immediately upon the detection of a firearm, RAD's AI-driven analytics can autonomously perform a variety of actions including appropriately activating a local audible and visual alarm, locking and securing electronic doors, notifications to remote monitoring or onsite security personnel, and law enforcement authorities - ideally before any shots are fired.

AITX believes that there are more than 100,000 K-12 schools that could immediately benefit from this firearm detection technology. AITX hardware and software solutions deploy quickly and provide a non-biased level of early detection and deterrence to potential firearm-related events in and around these buildings.
