What is Helium (HNT)?

There is always a plan behind any ecology. Their roadmaps always revealed their intentions to investors, whether in the areas of artificial intelligence, healthcare, logistics, networks, or interactions. In July of 2019, a talented group of programmers and internet pioneers unveiled Helium Network. It's a decentralised network that allows Internet of Things (IoT) devices to connect to WiFi networks without worrying about range or battery life.

Helium Token is a new method for staying online that combines a crypto miner, a router, and a token, all of which are located in close proximity to one another. Users of the HNT network link their router to others in their vicinity. These would form a network of interconnected data devices, much like a web, and users would be compensated by mining HNT. When compared to the Helium Network, the typical WiFi architecture has inferior coverage. With the Helium LongFi protocol design, this platform offers a more reliable means of connecting to the internet regardless of your physical location. Proof-of-Concept (PoC) functionality built into the Helium hotspot enables secure data collection from mobile devices without revealing their physical locations.

Helium tokens are awarded to users as an incentive for data credit mining and development. Helium Network Tokens (HNTs) are given to the Helium hotspot's operators in exchange for their provision of and contribution to the area's shared internet and data services. In addition, more high-quality data transfers result in more data credits, which can be used to settle digital transactions like fees.

The Helium Network (HNT) uses the unlicensed US-915 frequency, which eliminates the need for radio licences. Additionally, they are a part of the open-source group IDWA (Independent Decentralised Wireless Alliance), which promotes user and provider rights to autonomy and governance in wireless networks by means of the Helium Improvement Proposal (HIP).

Helium (HNT) Price History

Helium Chart

The most up-to-date cost of one Helium token (HNT) is $2.43, and the token is now ranked #85 across all cryptocurrencies by market cap. There are now 133,480,284 Helium tokens in circulation, and its market cap is $324,455,945.

The value of the cryptocurrency has dropped by -2.58% in the previous 24 hours. The HNT's market cap has also decreased since yesterday, as can be seen by comparing today's value to that of a day ago.

Helium is having a tough time catching on with other cryptocurrency. For the past week, the HNT has lost nearly -1.94% of its value. Even if the coin has solid underlying fundamentals, its recent risky framing segments make us doubt that it will be a lucrative asset in the near future.

HNT's value has dropped by a stunning -$1.88, or -43.65%, over the past month. This unexpected drop indicates the coin is currently in a downturn, which may present a nice buying opportunity for anyone looking to make a quick investment.

Over the previous 90 days, the price has fluctuated from a low of $5.76 to a high of $6.18, for a total percentage change of about -58%. The average price of Helium during the previous four months has fluctuated between $9.61 and $9.07, a loss of -74.8 percent.

What Will Affect the Helium (HNT) Price?

Right now, the major factors influencing the value of a coin are the amount of money invested in speculation and the mood of the market as a whole. The HNT price will reflect market conditions. A strong fundamental element could result in a multiplication of market capitalization by 3-5 times. The failure of significant projects, the entry of institutional market players, changes in legislation pertaining to cryptocurrencies and cryptocurrency exchanges, etc., are all examples of fundamental occurrences.

The long-term growth of the Internet of Things, wireless communication, and the platform's internal functional potential will all have an impact on the pricing. Even though many concepts have only just begun to take shape, work is now being done on the platform.

Is Helium (HNT) a Good Investment?

For a variety of reasons, Helium cryptocurrency could be a smart buy.

Helium is a deflationary currency since there is a finite amount of HNT and the demand for Helium-related goods and services is expected to rise in tandem with the value of Helium itself. Helium is also one of the safest and most decentralised cryptocurrencies, making it very resistant to hacking and other forms of fraud. The Helium project has a great chance of succeeding because of the talented group of developers and advisors working on it. Last but not least, Helium's long-term plans call for the introduction of various novel products and services, which might drive up the price of HNT significantly.

The HNT coin price prediction and any other content on Changelly should not be considered investment advice or a substitute for the counsel of a licenced financial adviser. We advise you to perform your own homework before committing to a purchase of Helium.

How high can HNT go?

A new cryptocurrency with a lot of attention is the Helium Network Token (HNT). It's the fuel that keeps the decentralised wireless Helium network going, where sensors and Internet of Things gadgets can be linked by anyone. The Helium team has ambitious intentions to further expand the network's availability to even more places throughout the world. HNT will be in higher demand as the network's usage increases.

With an average price of over $250 by 2030, some analysts predict HNT will rise to be among the top 10 cryptocurrencies by market capitalization. Although it is difficult to foretell the future of any cryptocurrency's price, HNT's solid foundations make it a possible high performer in the years to come.
