What Is Propy (PRO)?

After more than a decade in the real estate sector, Propy's CEO Natalia Karayaneva grew weary of the pervasive and tedious nature of homebuyers' reliance on misleading information. Karayaneva and the businesswoman/development manager formed Propy to streamline the property sales process.

To streamline the process of selling real estate, Propy came up with an innovative concept. A firm out of Palo Alto is changing the housing industry story by creating technology that will allow for digital and auto land sales on blockchain networks.

For sales contracts, we use DOCU (DocuSign), and to close the deal, we use secret wire transfers. It handles documents as well. Cryptocurrencies and fiat money are both accepted for transactions. The investor can buy the officially certified copy after the deal is closed using the blockchain address. The blockchain acts as a non-fungible token (NFT) since it records the deed.

Because it is built on the Ethereum network protocol and adheres to the ERC721 standard, Propy is able to integrate with its users' wallets. Propy assesses a fee to brokers for each buyer. There were designated incentive payment systems on the Ethereum network where the tokens acquired for adding data to the Propy Database were stored.
